The Theme :

When we talk about education in India, we just talk about how education is in urban India, without going deep into rural education that constitutes almost 80% of our whole education system. Recent studies have shown how the face of education in rural parts of the country have developed to a great extent, but some remote areas still do need a serious checkup with children failing to receive basic quality education. We may agree that, it is education that leads to the road to betterment of a community and the nation at large. And when we think about bring in a reformation in education, we have to point out what all prevents the education system in India to develop. Let's start it with rural education.

India being the second largest education in the world, the scale of operation involved to ensure quality of Education for all throughout the country is unique and challenging. At the same time, the nature of problems affecting the education system are so diverse and often deep rooted that the solution cannot be so easy by alternation of any single factor – it is not about not just shortage of money or just shortage of trained teachers or lock of political will or problem of implementation of policy decisions, all these undeniably affect the country's education systems.

According to Professor Amartya Sen, "Primary education in India suffers not only from inadequate allocation of resource, but often enough also from terrible management and organization. To him, there are three major defects in the present educational system – (i) physical environment in which the student is taught (ii) curriculum or the content which he/she is taught and (iii) teaching method of the teacher who is teaching.

Sub-Themes:

- Equity and access in rural education
- Expectation and achievement in rural education
- Economic back drop of rural education
- Socio-cultural context of rural education
- Linguistic issues in rural education
- Rural education in the National policy
- ICT uses in rural education

Each delegate analysed various aspects of rural education and created a clear picture of the present rural education system in West Bengal. They demonstrated its limitations, and defects, and suggested ways to overcome them.

After lunch, the second technical session started at 2:40 p.m., where research papers were presented and certificates were distributed. The day was a great success.

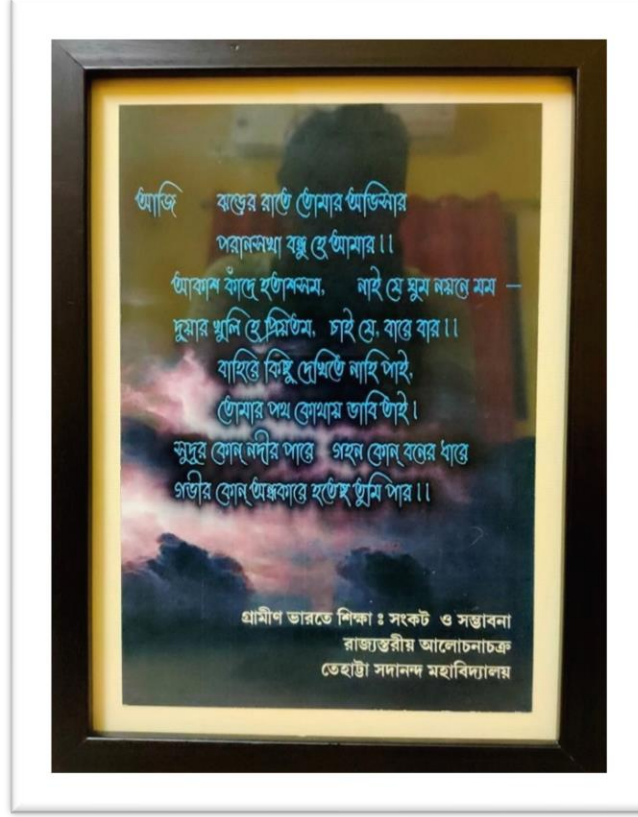

Outcomes

The lectures delivered by the resource person helped the students acquire a wealth of new knowledge. They gained valuable insights into the importance of conducting in-depth research on education in remote areas. As a result, the skill of research had developed among the students. The research findings are expected to be extremely useful in the formulation of new education policies for rural areas. Associate Professor in English
Tehatta Sadananda Mahavidyalaya.

The Theme

The word Literature has come from Latin word literatura which means all types of written account. The concept has changed meaning over time to include texts that had been originally nonwritten or verbal art forms like spoken or sung items. Development in Print technology has allowed an ever growing distribution and proliferation of written works, culminating in electronic literature.

But the basic question still remains to be answered : What is literature? Why do we read literature? Conventionally it has been said that written works, especially those considered of superior or lasting artistic merit may be called literature. But superior in which sense? What is meant exactly by 'lasting artistic merit'? What are its characteristics? These need to be specifically determined and theoritized.

Then in Sanskrit literary theory it has been categorically specified that reading of literature or visualization of literary items like drama, offer us pleasure, causes "rasa nispati". But what is 'rasa'? How dan its true effect be properly tasted or achieved? Questions like these lead us to the philosophy or soul of literature, to its meaning and additional meanings which like the ever extending circles in a pond move wider whenever a stone is dropped in it.

Students, scholars, critics, philosophers and literary artists, sitting together, may fix and resolve guidelines how to answer these questions, what to read in literature and why and how. The present seminar takes its origin from such an intension to address these basic important matters and to erase the frowns, doubts, riddles and misconceptions about literature, about its nature, theory, practice and application.

Sub Themes :

- Meaning of / in literature
- Philosophical basis of literature
- Rasa / pleasure in literature
- Humanism in literature
- Truth, beauty and literature
- Women in literature
- Divine literature
- Theories of East and West in literature
- Literature and art

A brief Description of the Seminar	Tehatta Sadananda Mahavidyalaya organized a seminar on "Philosophy and Theory of Literature: Why Should We Read Literature" on Tuesday, March 19th, 2019. The seminar was inaugurated by our Teacher-In-Charge, Dr. Pritam Das, an Assistant Professor in Education, at 10:30 a.m. He warmly welcomed all the students, honourable speakers, paper presenters, and participants who came to our college in the remote area. Our President, Shri Pranab Roy, a social worker, also addressed the session and greeted everyone. After the inauguration session, the first technical session started at 11:30 a.m. In the first technical session, our invited resource person, Dr. Sujit Kr. Chowdhary, Inspector of College, Burdwan University, deeply discussed why we should read literature and its importance in our daily lives. His lecture engaged the students and connected their minds to another world. Several renowned professors, poets, scholars, and literary artists came to the seminar from Kolkata, Bardhaman, and Kalyani University. The resource persons shared their valuable literary works with our students, and their speeches increased our knowledge about literature, its origin, and various points. They analysed various parts of literature. After lunch, the second technical session started at 2:40 p.m. In this session, papers were presented, and certificates were distributed. The whole day was spent in a knowledgeable environment.
Outcomes	The students gained new knowledge from the lecture which changed their perspective on literature reading. They actively participated in a question-answer session to learn more about their areas of interest. The seminar highlighted the importance of constructing basic concepts of literature, and the day was a great success. It was a major achievement for Tehatta College as a book of abstracts was published on that day.
